DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on November 30, 2008 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments, filed 12/17/2008, with respect to claims 15, 17 – 34 and 37 have been fully considered and are persuasive. The rejection and objection of previous Office action has been withdrawn.

3. However, upon further examination, there remain a non statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 31 and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The computer readable medium as recited in the claims 31 and 34 can be a storage medium as well as a "communication media" as described in applicant's disclosure. Therefore, claims 31 and 34 are not limited to statutory embodiments.

In view of Applicant's disclosure, specification page 18, the medium is not limited to statutory embodiments, instead being defined as including both tangible embodiments (e.g., removable storage and hard disk drive) and intangible embodiments (e.g., a carrier-wave signal). These particular sections in the disclosure refer to "communication media" and/or "transmission media".

Therefore, the claim is drawn to a form of energy. Energy is not one of the four categories of invention and therefore this claim(s) is/are not statutory. Energy is not a series of steps or acts and thus is not a process. Energy is not a physical article or object and as such is not a machine or manufacture. Energy is not a combination of substances and therefor not a composition of matter.

As such, the claim is not limited to statutory subject matter and is therefore non-statutory.

They are, at best, functional descriptive material per se (see MPEP 2106).

According to MPEP 2106:

The claims lack the necessary physical articles or objects to constitute a machine or a manufacture within the meaning of 35 USC 101. They are clearly not a series of steps or acts to be a process nor are they a combination of chemical compounds to be a composition of matter. As such, they fail to fall within a statutory category. They are, at best, functional descriptive material per se.

Descriptive material can be characterized as either “functional descriptive material” or “nonfunctional descriptive material.” Both types of “descriptive material” are nonstatutory when claimed as descriptive material per se, 33 F.3d at 1360, 31 USPQ2d at 1759. When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium, it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized. Compare In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d 1031, 1035 (Fed. Cir. 1994)

Merely claiming nonfunctional descriptive material, i.e., abstract ideas, stored on a computer-readable medium, in a computer, or on an electromagnetic carrier signal, does not make it statutory. See Diehr, 450 U.S. at 185-86, 209 USPQ at 8 (noting that the claims for an algorithm in Benson were unpatentable as abstract ideas because “[t]he sole practical application of the algorithm was in connection with the programming of a general purpose computer.”).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: claims 15, 17 – 34 and 37 could be allowable when non-statutory subject matter would overcome.
